

PILOT DIES AFTER BEING INJURED IN PLANE ACCIDENT

Lieutenant Frank P. Albright, of Wilbur Wright Field, Fairfield, pilot of the plane which fell at Rantoul, Ill., August 12, died from injuries received in the accident at the Walter Reed Hospital at Washington, D. C., Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock.

William A. Dickerson of Wright Field was killed in the crashed. Albright was taken to the Walter Reed Hospital, soon after the wreck. Lieutenant Albright and Dickerson were stationed at Wilbur Wright Field and had participated in a flying circus at St. Louis the day before the accident. On their return trip they stopped at Chanute Field at Rantoul and when they attempted to "take off" at the field their plane crashed.

Dickerson received a fractured skull and died two days later. Albright is said to have received internal injuries but it was thought at the time of the accident he would recover.

Lieutenant Albright came to Wilbur Wright Field in July. His home is in Delphi, Iowa, where he will be buried.

TEN GUESSERS OF WEIGHT ARE CLOSE

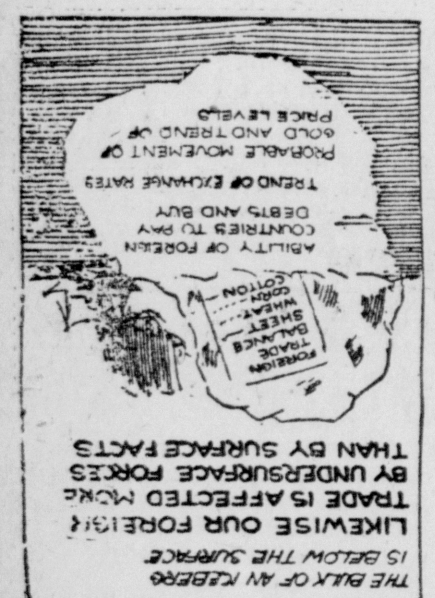

There were a number of "close guessers" on the weight of the rock suspended from a silk stocking in the window of the Moser Shoe Store, this week. The rock was weighed Thursday morning in the presence of witnesses and balanced the scales at 117½ pounds.

The nearest guessers to the correct weight were made by the following persons, J. W. Barth, Xenia, 117; Miss Marie Voorhees, Xenia, R. R. 4, 117; Andrew Hall 502 East Church Street, 117; K. R. Babb, 16 South Detroit Street, 117; R. J. Smith, 223 North Galloway Street, 115; Edward Lichliter, R. R. 4, Xenia, 117; Emerson Stephens, 23 Charles Street, 117; Herman Gill, Xenia, 117; Claude Harsh, O. S. and S. O. Home, 117; Edward Higgins, 12 Home Avenue, 118.

The names of the foregoing were placed in a hat and five slips drawn for the awarding of prizes. The names drawn were, Edward Lichliter, Emerson Stephens, Herman Gill, Claude Harsh and Edward Higgins.

MONEY AT WORK

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments

There is a vast world movement of services and capital which is not tangible. This enormous trade goes under the name of invisible exchange and amounts to billions of dollars annually.

In any analysis of our foreign trade balance sheets, it is essential to take into account many items not appearing in the customs returns. These items, currently styled invisible exchange, are of such increasing importance in any conclusion as to the movement of our foreign trade, as to our credit situation, as to the ability of foreign countries to buy commodities and pay debts as to the probable trend of exchange rates, as to the movement of gold and trend of price levels—that they require a comprehensive study by all whose interest lies along these lines. Any recent foreign trade book will take up these matters in detail and will prove a fascinating study for even a layman reader.

John Herman Quirk, 39, died at the home of his mother, Mrs. Ella Quirk on Leaman Street, Wednesday night at 10:35 o'clock, after an illness of five years. Mr. Quirk's condition had been serious since last March, from a complication of diseases.

He was born in Xenia and spent all of his life in this city, though recently employed as a shoe cutter at the Lape and Adler Company, Columbus. He was a member of the American Legion and was stationed during the World War at Camp Sherman as a member of the Eighty-third Division, 323rd Field Artillery.

Mr. Quirk is survived by his mother, Mrs. Ella Quirk, one brother, William Quirk, at home and two sisters, Mrs. William Sanders of Xenia and Mrs. Clara Bennett at home.

Funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home with interment in Woodland Cemetery.

PROSPECTS OF NEXT YEAR'S SEED CORN HURT BY FROSTS

Late planting in 1924 with early frosts caused a serious situation with regard to next year's seed corn, according to County Agricultural Agent, Ford S. Prince. "There is no doubt but that the seed corn shortage can be averted if proper methods are pursued by Greene County farmers," says Mr. Prince. The method which should be pursued, he continues, is to pick or select the corn from the field, either from the standing stalk or at husking time and then after the selection to see that the corn is thoroughly and properly dried.

A few points to be remembered in picking corn, are pointed out by Mr. Prince: First, as nearly mature as possible. Second, free from mold; Third, bone on sound, strong shanks; Fourth at a convenient height from the ground; Fifth, from vigorous, green healthy stalks; Sixth, surrounded by full stand.

Seed corn should be stored with the following fundamentals in mind: First, the same day as harvested; Second, in a dry, well ventilated place; Third, so that no two ears touch.

Good places are: First, special seed corn houses; Second, spare room in house; Third, granaries; Fourth, Tool shed; Fifth, attics; Sixth, furnace room. Poor places are stables, oats bins, unheated basements and under the eaves.

BALLOON RACES TO START THIS MONTH AT WASHINGTON C. H.

Three mammoth balloons which recently took part in the international aeronautical races at Antwerp, Belgium and some of the world's foremost aeronauts will start from Washington, C. H., September 30, in the first of the Ohio Regional Balloon races, under the auspices of the Fayette County Automobile Club, it is announced.

The contest has been arranged by Hugh Allen, formerly of Washington, who is connected with the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company of Akron. The several balloonists who will take part in the contest will include Ralph Upson, of Detroit, America's leading aeronaut and Major Van Orman, who won the international races in the West this year. He, like Upson, has an international reputation and took part in the races at Belgium, but failed to win because they encountered a cross-current while over Russia and was carried back to within 150 miles of the starting point.

Each of the huge balloons which are owned by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, of Akron, contains 35,000 cubic feet of gas and each balloon carries two men, the pilot and his assistant. They will be equipped for remaining in the air many hours and prizes are to be awarded the pilots finishing first, second and third.

The event, the first of its kind ever taking place in this section of Ohio promises to draw a large crowd.

COOLIDGE TELLS LEGION WORLD IS NEARER PEACE

Highly important progress has been made toward elimination of war, President Coolidge declared in a letter of greeting read to the American Legion convention, Monday.

The President's communication expressing regret that he could not attend praised the part played by legionaries both in war and in peace, "a record of unselfish readiness to serve."

The "heavy drafts upon the loyalty and patriotism of those able to defend" this country, the President said, "always have been gloriously met, but the meeting of them has brought suffering and tragedy beyond all accounting."

"It has represented a burden that must not again be laid upon the young manhood of the Nation, save in circumstances which make it absolutely unavoidable."

"The thought of the world turning increasingly toward peace, its preservation and perpetuation. I am glad to say to the Legion that this thought is more and more finding leadership and direction."

"We are justified, as never before, in the hope for great accomplishments through the co-operation of the nations, in the ways of peace. Highly important progress is making along the road which leads to the elimination of war from this world."

WALES ASTOUNDS PRINTER WITH KNOWLEDGE OF ART

The Prince of Wales Monday paid a visit to a point of American literary and industrial interest, when he drove to Garden City, to look at the editorial offices and mechanical works of Doubleday Page & Co., publishers.

The Prince had known Walter Hines Page, founder of the firm when he was the American ambassador to Great Britain and "The Life and Letters of Walter Hines Page," published a year ago, was one of the most interesting books that he read, according to Captain A. F. Lascelles, secretary to H. R. H.

Arthur Page, who succeeded his father in the firm, met the Prince and Major O. N. Solbert and General G. E. Trotter, who accompanied him, at the door and conducted them through the place.

After visiting the editorial office where Walter Hines Page directed the magazine and book publication, the Prince went through the composing room, the electrotyping foundry and the bindery.

The Prince discussed their work with John Leggett, an English compositor, who had been in the plant for twenty years, and with William H. Rogan, electrotyping superintendent, in a way which made Leggett ask where the visitor learned so much about the mechanics of printing.

"You know there's a printing plant on some property of mine," explained the Prince.

BY MISTAKE A QUEEN PRAISES "DRIVEL" POETRY

There is only one Pennell, of course. But that is a figure of speech. In actuality, there are at least two, and that has caused a curious mixup. John Pennell, a London bookbinder and publisher, contributed some "Thoughts" for the library of the Queen's Doll House at the Wembley Exposition. They were promptly, and on high authority, ascribed to our own, our inimitable Joseph and Queen Mary sent him a letter of thanks. Samples of the "Thoughts": "Poetry—the sweetest song this earth has heard"; "A careless life is not worth living"; "The law of life is love"; "A good life is the readiest way to secure a good name." Those who know Joseph Pennell will not wonder that he got his back up, that he immediately repudiated these "Thoughts," that he labeled them "drivel." Not even the flattering mistake of a Queen could save his injured cynicism. One's sympathy does go out to John, of London, because of the uninvited comparison he drew for his pains. In his case, however, the Queen's second letter, correcting the mistake, will prove balm in Gilead and remove the sting of the other Pennell's label of "drivel."—Public Ledger.

NELL BUYS A MAH JONGG SET

Said I to Jeff: "Where common sense is,
I don't kick about expenses;
But there's times I do get mullish
When I think she's downright foolish."
Money's mighty hard to get,
Now she's bought a mah jongg set.
"Home she comes and proudly shows it,
Says she's learned the game and knows it,
Tells me in her way emphatic
Mah jongg's so aristocratic;
Chinese money, suits and dice,
Thirty dollars was the price!"
"Thirty dollars!" I exploded:
"Nell," said I, "if I was loaded
Like a cherry tree with cherries,
And if money grew like berries,
Thirty dollars I'd not pay
For some Chinese game to play."

Later on I stopped my rowing;
Watched and heard 'em jangling,
chowing,
Building alls, discarding, draining,
And in spite of all my jawing
I forgot the cost and sat
In and played, and that is that.

The following knitting directions are for a surplice sweater for a six-month-old baby (or any fairly small baby under a year old). The sleeves of this sweater are long and the front has one pointed end folding over an opposite pointed end; a narrow belt is knitted to these pointed-fronts, which buttons in the back.

Material: One ball of pluk two-fold Saxony, one pair of either bone or celluloid knitting needles size four, two pearl buttons.

Terms: K means knit. P means purl. Sts. means stitches. N means narrow (that is, knit two stitches together as one stitch). R means ridge. B. O. L. means bind off loosely.

Begin the sweater by casting on 50 sts. K one, P one for 12 rows. K 22 R (over and back making one ridge). For sleeves cast on ten sts. at each end of the row; repeat on next row across, add five on the next row across, giving 100 in all. K 16 r. For the neck knit 38 sts. and slip onto a safety pin; bind off 24 sts. for the back of the neck and k the remaining 38 sts. for one ridge. For the front: At the neck end and on the second row of the ridge increase one of the second st. by knitting the back and the front of the same stitch; repeat this widening each ridge for the entire front. On the sixteenth ridge shape the second side of the sleeve, bind off five. On

THE DARK ROOMS

Pictures taken by a camera have to be developed in a dark room. If the light strikes them before, they are ruined.

It is in the dark room that these pictures are developed.

If we lived in the light all the time, we would become soft, contented and unable to cope with grave and sudden emergencies.

Hardship is the medicine of heroes.

I was told the other day that Admiral Peary died long before his time because he could not digest his food. He had subjected his stomach to such hardships in the Arctic and had to live for so long on the food of that region, mostly consisting of blubber that he could no longer assimilate the food of the average man. And so his blood grew white. But the blood in his heart was red to his dying breath—and perhaps beyond.

Peary knew the deepest meaning of the dark room and the long, black nights.

In the sunshine pictures are taken. In the darkness they are developed. The crowd may be around when the pictures are taken. Life may have its days of gaiety, laughter and fun, but in the dark rooms of test, trial, deep disappointment are the fine lines, as well as the lights and shadows brought out, developed—the larger issues of living.

Keep getting ready for the dark room. For you can no more hope for greatness or real success without this development than you can hope for wage without earning it.

Go into the dark room with a stout heart and a fearless smile.

CLIFTON

The World Aviators excited great enthusiasm as they passed, slightly to the north of our village, Saturday evening about 5:15 p.m. Villagers were first attracted by the noise of the Barling bomber approaching from the southwest, which joined the escort here. Sixteen planes, some of them performing aerial stunts, were in the fleet when it passed over here.

Mr. Dan Aultman, of Xenia, who is attending Normal School at Cedarville College was the guest of Mr. and Miss White last week.

Mr. Mac Harris is attending Antioch College this year.

NERVOUS, RUN-DOWN MOTHERS

—IN—

Worn Out Caring for Children and Housework—See how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helps

Indianapolis, Indiana.—"I was in a very nervous and run-down condition while nursing my baby, and hearing some talk of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I began taking it. From the second bottle I noticed a big improvement, and I am still taking it. I am not a bit nervous now, and feel like a different person. It is a great medicine for any one in a nervous, run-down condition and I would be glad to give any one advice about taking it. I think there is no better medicine and give you permission to publish this letter."

—Mrs. ANNA SMITH, 541 W. Norwood Street, Indianapolis, Indiana.

The important thing about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is that it does help women suffering from the ailments common to their sex.

If you are nervous and run-down and have pains in your lower parts and in your back, remember that the Vegetable Compound has relieved other women having the same symptoms. For sale by druggists everywhere.
